Directing Community Philanthropy:

Every city, town or county has projects that they would like to see come to fruition because they have such public appeal; however, budgetary constraints dictate that these projects must go unfunded and uncompleted.

It may be a new playground, small addition to the local library or an additional day center for Senior Citizens.

You can take the knowledge you gain at New York Trust University and have an immediate platform to approach the city council or town leaders.

The program that you will offer bears no capital cost to the city, whatsoever, nor the people from whom you will obtain the funds.

The city leaders just need to understand what it is that you will do, vocalize their support and put you in touch with the people of substance and power within the community.

You can quickly become the go to guy...or gal in the community for any pet projects.
